

DIVORCE

The divorce rate in the United States is the highest in the world. Over 50% of marriages end in divorce. Those who are divorced, or going through a divorce are more likely to suffer from depression as they experience the loss of a partner, the loss of hopes and dreams, and the end of a lifestyle. The financial reality of divorce can also be devastating.

Ending a marriage can be traumatic and result in lots of conflicting emotions. You may experience the feeling of fear, relief, shock, betrayal, resentment, anger, guilt, and/or insecurity. All of these feelings are normal and are typical responses that come with the ending of a relationship.

It might be helpful to understand that a marriage does not breakdown overnight, or as the result of a single incident; nor is the breakup entirely the fault of one party. An important part of the healing process for each party is to claim responsibility for their own actions (both now and during the marriage). Healing includes acceptance, planning for the future, and acting with integrity.

CHILDREN & DIVORCE

Conflict in the home can lead to depression, conflict, and conduct problems in children. The level of conflict is the single most determining factor in children's adjustment to their parent's divorce. Children that succeed well after divorce, have parents who can set aside their differences to communicate effectively and work together as parents.

Boys and girls differ in their response to divorce. Boys are more likely to get into trouble in school and/or fight more with peers and parents, as they act out their anger, frustration, and hurt. Girls tend to internalize their distress and may become depressed or suffer from stomach aches or headaches. Girls are more likely to change their eating and sleeping patterns as they try to cope with their emotions.

The children's continued interaction with both parents is important in fostering a better balance in future relationships with others. Feeling secure in parental relationships is likely to result in better intimate relationships in adulthood.

SCRIPTURE RESOURCES

My soul is weary with sorrow; strengthen me according to your word. Psalm 119:28

Get rid of all bitterness, rage and anger, brawling and slander, along with every form of malice. Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ God forgave you. Ephesians 4:31-32

Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make your paths straight. Proverbs 2:5-6

Those who know your name trust in you, for you, Lord, have never forsaken those who seek you. Psalm 9:10

SUGGESTED READING

- "Single, Married, Separated, & Life After Divorce" by Myles Munroe
- "When The Vow Breaks" by Joseph Warren Kniskern
- "Recovering From Losses In Life" by H. Norman Wright

SUPPORT GROUPS

Dynamic Marriage

For all our differences, men and women want the same thing: satisfying, loving relationships. How can you experience a lifetime of love, fulfillment and intimacy in your marriage? By learning habits that meet the important emotional needs of yourself and your spouse.

Family Dynamics' educational and entertaining eight-week course changes lives. Dynamic Marriage produces tangible results!. The course work gives couples time to learn how to stop damaging behaviors in their marriage, deal with conflict, and learn to meet each others emotional needs.

If you have questions, want more information, or would like to be notified when registration is open, contact care@clarksburg.com for a group in your area.

DivorceCare

This is not just for people going through a divorce, but can also be life changing for those considering a separation or divorce. We can help you through this very difficult event in your life as you also gain a deeper understanding of God's love and plan for you.

Most people will tell you that separation and divorce are the most painful and stressful experiences they've ever faced. It's a confusing time when you feel isolated and have lots of questions about issues you've never faced before.

DivorceCare is a friendly, caring group of people who will walk alongside you through one of life's most difficult experiences. Don't go through separation or divorce alone. This group is lead by people who understand what you are going through and want to help. They group will help you deal with the pain of the past and look forward to rebuilding your life.

If you have questions, want more information on a group in your area, or need to talk, email care@clarksburg.com.

c

